Fire Causes $250,000 Damage; Flying Debris Spreads Destruction

Colby, Wis. — Searchers have found the body of one man in the smoldering wreckage of the Colby feed mill but are still looking for the remains of another.

Clark County Coroner Robert Luloff said parts of a body found Friday in the ruins of the blast-torn mill had been identified as those of 42-year-old Arnold Elpert. Nearby were some of his belongings—a cigarette case, shoes and shreds of a red shirt.

Still listed as missing is 55-year-old Jess Degner. The coroner said charred portions of human bones found Friday could be those of Degner but the evidence was insufficient to establish identification.

Two shattering explosions and a fire ripped through the huge concrete and timber structure Thursday afternoon. The damage was estimated at $250,000.

Threw Concrete
The force of the two explosions threw chunks of concrete and timber high into the air. A filling station across the street was severely damaged and store display windows were shattered by the concussion of the blasts.

Fire Chief Ray Gries blamed the explosion and fire on an accumulation of dust, apparently from feed processing, and set off by a spark from an unknown source.

The mill, with elevators five stories high, was the largest building in this north central Wisconsin community of 1,000.

Authorities said questioning of witnesses indicated there might have been a series of explosions as dust caught fire along the half-block length of the building.

Grain Smoldered
Fire department units stood by throughout the New Year's eve period and all day Friday and Friday night as much of the grain that had been stored in the elevators continued to smolder.

Mrs. Albery Genett of Spencer, who was driving past when the explosions occurred, said, "I thought I had a flat tire. Then I looked back and saw things flying through the air."

Leo Lukowicz, a commercial photographer, said the blasts "seemed to lift me right off my feet." His studio is only a short distance from the mill. Lukowicz said he saw debris flying through the air and that the entire building "was a mass of flames and the roof was blown completely off."

Stage, Screen Star Found Dead in Hotel

New Haven, Conn. — Actress Margaret Sullivan died Friday, a few hours before going on stage as star of a new play.

Authorities indicated she may have unintentionally taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

Miss Sullivan, 48, was found unconscious in her hotel room. She was dead on arrival at Grace New Haven Community hospital.

The actress, nervous and upset had been under the care of a physician for two days. James J. Corrigan, New Haven County coroner, said her death might have resulted from an overdose of barbiturates but added: "I do not believe it was a suicide."

Miss Sullivan had been visited by a physician early Friday and again in the afternoon. Her husband, Kenneth Wagg, spoke with her about 2 p.m.

Kennedy Opens Official Race For President

New Hampshire First Of Several Primaries He Says He Will Enter

Washington — Sen. John F. Kennedy today formally stepped into the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The 42-year-old Massachusetts senator said he intends to go into several presidential primaries, beginning with the one in New Hampshire March 8.

Describing the presidency as "the most powerful office in the free world," Kennedy's statement said leadership at this time is vital in the life of the American people.

"For it is in the executive branch that the most crucial decisions of this century must be made in the next four years," Kennedy said.

He said these decisions involve "how to end or alter the burdensome arms race, where Soviet gains already threaten our very existence."

Other decisions, Kennedy said, will involve maintaining the freedom and order in newly emerging nations, rebuilding the stature of American science and education, and "how to prevent the collapse of our farm economy and the decay of our cities."

Also involved, Kennedy said, are decisions on "how to achieve, without further inflation or unemployment, expanded economic growth benefiting all Americans and how to give direction to our traditional moral purpose, awakening every American to the dangers and opportunities that confront us."

Kennedy, the first Roman Catholic to bid seriously for his party's nomination since Al Smith was defeated in 1928, said he will campaign on those issues in the drive for the nomination.

By all the political signs, Kennedy is the front runner for a nomination for which Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., announced Wednesday and which Adlai E. Stevenson, senate Democratic leader and Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., also may seek.

But even Kennedy's ardent supporters concede he hasn't in sight now the 761 votes he would need to win the nomination at the July 11 convention in Los Angeles.

U. S. Freighter Runs Aground

Most of Crew Saved From Wreck Near Singapore

Singapore — The American freighter Valley Forge, carrying 37 crew members, broke up today after running aground on treacherous reefs 50 miles southeast of Singapore. The British navy said at least 26 of the men have been picked up.

Several others were spotted by a rescue plane on a small island near the twisted wreckage of the freighter.

Eight crewmen from the 7,202-ton ship were rescued by a salvage tug which battled mountainous seas and gale-force winds in a futile attempt to save her.

A British navy vessel took aboard 18 others from an uninhabited island several miles from the spot where the Valley Forge grounded. The 18 earlier had made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the tug in a lifeboat.

The navy said a Royal Air Force plane reported that other crewmen had reached Bantian island, the largest of the Indonesian islands south-east of Singapore.

9-Year-Old Trapped

Man, 2 Girls Saved as Car Drops Through Ice

Chilton — A near tragedy on Lake Winnebago was averted by a quick thinking father and some helpful bystanders when a car carrying two children broke through the ice north of Quincy.

E. Doolan, Branch, Manitowish county, pushed one of his daughters, Jacqueline, 6, out of the car as he escaped the sinking vehicle but a second daughter, Kathy, 9, was trapped when the front of the vehicle dropped in about 12 feet of water. Only the car's trunk and rear window remained above the surface.

Ice fishermen rushed to Doolan's aid. By smashing the rear window with an ice chisel they were able to pull the trapped girl to safety.

The car broke through the ice after hitting intersecting cracks about one-quarter mile from shore. Repeated efforts to raise the car Thursday failed. The auto kept breaking through the ice when pulled out.

New Year's Crash Kills Waupaca Man

Robert Bradley Dies Friday; One Of Four in State

Robert W. Bradley, 23, Royall street, Waupaca, was killed instantly about 9:50 a.m. New Year's day in a car-truck collision two miles east of Waupaca on Highway 10.

He was the first 1960 Waupaca county traffic fatality. Three other highway deaths occurred New Year's day in Wisconsin, giving a total of four, compared to seven for the same day a year ago.

Wisconsin completed 1959 with 819 traffic fatalities, four less than in 1958. There were three deaths New Year's eve.

Bradley's car collided with a milk truck driven by Orlo Manweiler, route 1, Berlin.

Manweiler was not hurt. Bradley was headed west and the truck east.

Veered into Path
County police said Bradley apparently veered into the truck's lane near the County Trunk A intersection. His car was struck as it headed back toward its own lane.

The truck driver told investigating officers Capt. Royal Myhill, county police, and Harley Dunbar, city police.

Farmers Win $12 Million Price Boost
Chicago — Dairy farmers — including some from Wisconsin — who have been feuding with Chicago processors over the price of milk, have won an increase that will pay them an additional $12 million a year.

The new price was agreed upon Thursday by the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., at a meeting with the Federated Dairy cooperative, spokesmen for 19,000 farmers and dairymen who will share in the boost.

The agreement will also result in a boost in the retail price of milk, probably this weekend. The store price was expected to go to 23½ cents a quart, home delivered to 25½ cents a quart.

that Bradley appeared to have fallen asleep at the wheel. The entire left side of the victim's car was demolished. The truck had front end damage. The exact point of impact was not determined because no skid marks were apparent, according to police. Both vehicles halted in Bradley's lane.

Coroner Dr. Sam Salan ruled Bradley died of a broken neck. He was pinned in the front seat of his car.

The first state traffic victim of the new year was Casper Richards, 49, Shawano, who was killed at 3 a.m. Friday when his car and another collided at a Highway 29 intersection.

Toll May Set Record

Safety Council 'Shocked' at Holiday Deaths

Traffic 190
Fires 49
Miscellaneous 30
TOTAL 249

By The Associated Press

The nation's traffic deaths, averaging more than six each hour Friday and seemingly heading for a new record for a 3-day New Year holiday, tapered off during the morning hours.

The heavy toll since the start of the long holiday weekend at 6 p.m. Thursday was termed shocking by the National Safety Council.

The council, in a pre-holiday statement, estimated 320 persons may be killed during the 78-hour holiday period, which ends at midnight Sunday.

It said if the pace set Friday was maintained up to midnight Sunday, the toll would run above 400. The record traffic death toll for a 3-day New Year period was 364 at the start of 1956.

During one 6-hour period Friday, fatalities on the highways averaged more than 10 an hour. The council said the rate during the first day of the holiday was far above the daily normal motor vehicle death rate of slightly more than 100 per day.

To be Revealed This Year

Catholics Speculate On Fatima Prophecies

BY FRANK BRUTTO

Vatican City — Still secret prophecies of Fatima, as written by Sister Maria Dolores, are due to be disclosed this year. Speculation has been rife among Roman Catholics as to what they may contain.

Anniversary Date

Sister Maria, a 54-year-old cloistered nun at Coimbra's Carmelite convent in Portugal, is the sole survivor of conversion, however, was converted upon a sincere return said they saw visions of the Virgin Mary at Fatima in 1917.

She wrote the prophecies years ago, sealed them in an envelope and entrusted them to the bishop of Leiria, her ecclesiastical superior, to be opened in 1960 or at her death believed that the secret porphy she died before then.

Vatican sources said the disclosure would be made by the bishop but they did not know when. They said it might be on the anniversary of the first vision—May 13. It was on that day in 1917 that Lucia Dos Santos, now during the holy year the pontiff's sister, and her two sisters had experienced solar visions similar to that observed what they described as "a at Fatima Oct. 13, 1917."

New Year's Day Statement Seen As Move to Force West's Hand At Deadlocked Talks at Geneva

Moscow — Nikita Khrushchev's hint that the Soviet Union might go it alone in cutting armed forces strength suggested today the opening move in a new maneuver to force the west's hand on disarmament.

The Soviet premier told a New Year's reception "if the cold war exponents drag us into labyrinths of endless verbal discussions, should we adopt the way onto which they want to prod us?"

"Shouldn't we do some thinking for ourselves, reduce our armed forces unilaterally and entrust the defense of our borders to rockets?"

Khrushchev's declaration, sounded before foreign diplomats among the 1,500 guests at the Kremlin reception, was greeted cautiously in Washington.

Opening Move
But an initial reaction was that the Soviet leader's words may represent the opening move in an attempt to marshal world opinion and pressure the western powers into accepting his pet disarmament proposal at the East-West talks opening in Geneva March 15.

The proposal, submitted to the United Nations by Khrushchev during his U.S. visit last year, calls for total disarmament within four years. Khrushchev said in his New Year's eve statement that "if our proposals are accepted we are ready to dissolve our army any time and all our military will welcome this decision."

Too Vague
Western leaders go along with Khrushchev's proposal in principle but maintain it is too vague on the crucial issue of controls.

They insist that any arms reductions must be guaranteed through a workable control and inspection system.

The Soviet line at past disarmament discussions has called for reductions first, then consideration of controls.

Both the United States and Britain are drafting their own proposals to lay before the 10-nation Geneva disarmament committee on which communist nations will have numerical equality for the first time.

Khrushchev made no actual commitment the Soviet Union would cut its armies.

The Kremlin has announced reductions since World War II but never said how many men still are under arms.

Some Western military experts believe these reductions probably affected mainly service troops. Some estimates place total Soviet forces at 3½ million.

Told Prophecies
Some of the prophecies she made have been made public. They forecast World War II version of Soviet Russia to the Carmelite convent in Portugal, is the sole survivor of conversion, however, was converted upon a sincere return said they saw visions of the Virgin Mary at Fatima in 1917.

Kimberly Pastor Makes Old Nativity Scene Appear New

Kimberly — Members of Holy Name of Jesus Catholic parish were surprised when they attended services Christmas to see what appeared to be a new crib and nativity scene erected in front of the church.

Closer inspection, however, proved otherwise as the modern appearing figures were merely a result of hours of work carried out by the Rev. Joseph Kools, pastor, with assistance from some of his brothers.

The crib and statues are over 40 years old and usually were located near the St. Theresa chapel on the side of the church. Many of the figures were dirty, had missing parts and paint was badly chipped. Father Kools felt the pieces needed repair and did not want to have the parish invest money for new figures at this time.

After sanding down chipped parts and building up parts where pieces had been broken, he tried unsuccessfully to remove many layers of old paint from the statues. Finally he gave all the pieces a thorough cleaning and covered them with a coat of white paint. To prevent color from showing through, some pieces received three coats.

Blue Background
Using ordinary burlap, painted blue, a background for the white crib and figures was prepared. Tiny silver stars were pinned to the burlap with one large star directly overhead.

An outline of the city of Jerusalem was sketched in the background by the Rev. Mr.

Ditto the folks who did "Operation Petticoat." They have oldtimer Cary Grant to provide initial audience appeal and Tony Curtis for the young blood.

In "Ben-Hur" Charlton Heston has Stephen Boyd as a youthful sidekick.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

AP Newsphoto

Many Great Athletes have been strengthened by faith in God and prayer. In their prayers, they do not ask for victory — but to perform their best in accordance with Divine Will. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is one approach to acquaint high school and college athletes with the power of faith.

The organization was founded in 1954, through the inspiration of Don McClanan, young basketball coach at Eastern Oklahoma A & M. Among outstanding sports figures who have supported the group or attended its annual conference are Branch Rickey, Otto Graham, Robin Roberts, Bob Petti, Bud Held, Doak Walker, Paul Dietzel, Pete Elliott and Alonzo Stagg.

Two hundred young athletes attended the annual conference in 1956; over 600 attended this year, at Estes Park, Colo. City-wide programs also have been conducted in various communities from Springfield, Mass., to Denver. And Fellowship Athletes have spoken of sports and Christianity—and the relationship between the two—to more than 150,000 youngsters in 15 states this year.

With headquarters in Kansas City, McClanan's Fellowship is spreading its gospel to youth across America.

Driving Will Be Hazardous

Mixture of Rain, Sleet, Snow Forecast

The weatherman promised hazardous driving conditions over the state for the New Year's weekend with a mixture of sleet, rain and snow forecast.

Early this morning snow was falling north of a line between Eau Claire, Wausau and Green Bay, while in the south and west portions there was a mixture of sleet and rain. The bad weather was expected to move into the Fox Cities area during the day.

At 9:30 a.m. today, the weather bureau reported a temperature of 34 degrees, with winds out of the south-east at 15 to 20 miles per hour. The barometric reading was a low 28.94. Overnight the low was 30 degrees.

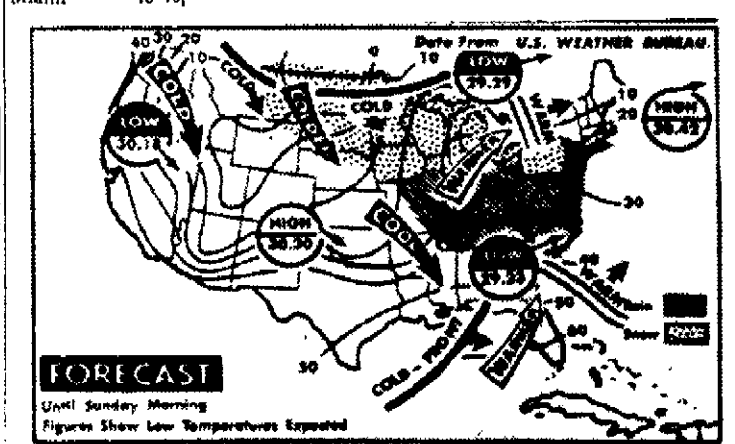

The trace of snow in the Appleton area during the night did not affect driving, as the precipitation melted. The outlook for tonight and Sunday is colder weather, clouds and possible snow flurries.

In the nation, severe wintry weather with heavy snows, strong winds and cold gripped wide areas of the midwest and west today.

Blizzard conditions prevailed in sections from north-west Kansas through Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas.

No Holiday in Effort to Bar Steel Walkout

Informal Action Aimed at Averting Another Stoppage

Washington —(AP)— Despite the holiday, informal talks were held Friday in the Eisenhower administration's continuing effort to prevent a new steel walkout late this month.

There was no announcement of any progress, nor any indication when further meetings were planned.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell met first with R. Conrad Cooper and other steel industry representatives. Later he conferred with President David J. McDonald and Arthur Goldberg, general counsel of the United Steelworkers union.

Although formal mediation sessions have been suspended temporarily, both Mitchell and Vice President Richard M. Nixon have been meeting periodically with both sides in an effort to ease the deadlock.

Little prospect for agreement was foreseen in advance of the Jan. 11-13 balloting by the union members on the companies' final offer. This is a procedure required by the Taft-Hartley law, and both sides are pointing their efforts toward it to make the best showing possible.

But hope was held that a settlement of some kind could be reached before Jan. 26. That is the expiration date of a Taft-Hartley law injunction which sent the steel workers back to the mills last Nov. 7 for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Red China Makes Offer to Settle Border Dispute

Tokyo —(AP)—Peiping told India today red China needs "a long-term peaceful international environment" to build up its economy and made a new offer to settle their border dispute.

But the plan broadcast by Peiping called for forces of each side to withdraw 12 1/2 miles from present positions, a proposal rejected twice previously by India.

Prime Minister Nehru turned down the red Chinese previously because such a withdrawal would leave red Chinese troops still deep in territory India regards as its own.

Premier Chou En-lai again suggested a meeting with Nehru to agree on some principles on the boundary dispute.

Jenkel Oil Company is Proud to present their fleet of dependable oil trucks, one of which will deliver Skelly furnace oil to your home promptly and with convenient metered service. The trucks are shown above at the bulk plant at 1201 N. Badger avenue and the phone number is RE 9-1144.

Jenkel Oil company is a local, home owned business and are the distributors of Skelly Furnace Oil with SK-12 additive which will prevent or retard the formation of gum, sludge and rust that cause most sudden furnace failures. Since the fuel pipe in your furnace ends in an opening no bigger than a pin point, even a tiny particle of sludge or gum can clog your furnace burner. With SK-12 in Skelly Furnace oil, you can prevent most cases of sudden oil stoppage due to a clogged nozzle, filter screen or fuel line, the firm says.

Metered service is another one of Jenkel's many services to the customer. The customer receives a printed receipt from the meter on the truck to show accurate delivery of the customer's purchase. The Jenkel Oil company will service your home or place of business with Skelly high heat — content fuel oil on demand or at regular intervals. Call Jenkel Oil for your heating needs. The number is RE 9-1144.

Food Freezing is Fun in the new 15-cubic-foot Frigidaire refrigerator-freezer. This handsome new model can be seen at Home Appliance, 225 W. College avenue, your local Frigidaire dealer.

Another kind of "cold war" — this one right here at home in the field of food preservation — is being waged with tremendous success by some of the manufacturers of household refrigeration equipment. Frigidaire designers, for example, have incorporated into new 1960 refrigerators and food freezers an extensive collection of basic, meaningful design developments such as frostless freezing which promises important advances for the homemaker on all foodkeeping fronts.

Because space — robbing frost never forms in the freezer section, it will always hold full capacity, 150 pounds of frozen food. Frost — Proof freezing system completely eliminates messy defrosting and unsightly frost-showers on the floor when packages are removed.

Storage facilities in Frigidaire's new refrigerators have been scientifically designed, effective meat storage drawers.

ers which keep meats fresh up to seven days, and newly designed storage shelves, easier to clean and permit more effective air circulation and lighting. Another feature is a new magnetic door seal for all refrigerator models and five upright food freezers.

New sheer look styling is deft combination of subtle metal sculpturing, open-circle filigree and clean, uncluttered styling lines.

Something New Can Be Added, and Lake Plumbing and Heating Co. has it for you. It is a thermostatic closet combination supply valve and it will stop closet condensation. Lake Plumbing is located on the corner of Route 114 and 10, at Waverly Beach, Appleton. The telephone number for Lake Plumbing is RE 3-2104.

Here is a totally new method of preventing condensation on closet combinations. It is completely automatic.

The thermostatic valve mixes water from the hot and cold supply lines to deliver tempered water to the closet tank. With no cool surfaces to collect condensation, "sweating" is eliminated.

When the closet is flushed, water from the cold line flows through the valve past the thermostatic unit. If the water in the line is at room temperature, the thermostat remains closed. When temperature of cold water drops, the thermostat unit contracts, allowing enough hot water to enter. The thermostat valve can be installed in any part of the supply system.

Call Lake Plumbing today and find out more about this valve which will end troublesome "sweating." Telephone number is RE 3-2104.

The Supreme Court on Obscene Books

The supreme court of the United States has held that a bookseller cannot be convicted of selling an obscene book unless the prosecution produces some evidence that the seller knew the book was obscene. The decision was in a Los Angeles case where the bookseller's claim that he had not read the book was held to be no defense. That is the case in most cities where it has been assumed the booksellers know or should know what they are selling.

However, all nine members of the court were in agreement that the conviction of Eleazar Smith, 72, Los Angeles, should be reversed. The opinion was written by Justice William J. Brennan who wrote an opinion two years ago which laid down the standard for what could be called obscene. In that decision it was held that a book or a picture, to be found obscene, must violate the current adult standards of acceptability. In the current case no member of the court expressed any view as to whether the book in question actually was obscene although Justice William O. Douglas said the book was "very repulsive to me."

While the court was unanimous in reversing the decision, there were actually four opinions expressed as to the reasons for the action although the Brennan opinion was published as the opinion of the court. Justice Hugo L. Black stood firmly by the position he had taken previously that the Constitution's protection of free speech bars any restriction on obscenity. Justice Douglas, while agreeing generally with Justice Black, said no obscene speech or writing was proscribable unless it tied closely to some illegal action. However, he expressed qualified approval of the Brennan decision.

Justice Felix Frankfurter claimed that Brennan's decision was too vague on the question of what kind of proof would be needed to show a bookseller's knowledge of a book. He favored reversing the lower court because literary and other experts had not been allowed to testify on whether the book violated contemporary community standards of decency. Justice John Marshall Harlan said he favored reversing the decision because the trial court had rejected every kind of evidence offered on current moral standards.

Oddly enough Justice Brennan declared that "if the bookseller is criminally liable without knowledge of the contents he will tend to restrict books he sells to those he has inspected." The justice expressed the fear that situation might deplete the book and periodical shelves because most booksellers do not have much time to read and out of fear of criminal liability might suppress books that the government could not ban directly.

But as to what testimony is required, the court declined to speak. Justice Brennan indicated that direct so-called eyewitness proof probably would not be required and suggested that inferences of the seller's general awareness could be drawn. While the court has not accepted Justice Black's contention that there can be no restrictions on obscenity, the court has made it quite plain that it is in favor of the widest possible circulation of reading matter that can be maintained within the range of contemporary community standards of decency.

Gubernatorial Volunteers

As we read the news dispatches there are at least two Republicans who are preparing to ask for the nomination of their party to challenge Gov. Gaylord Nelson next fall. Philip Kuehn of Milwaukee and Jack Olson of Wisconsin Dells have been talking like candidates, traveling like candidates, and sending out press releases after the time-honored fashion of candidates, and we can confidently guess that one day soon they will confess what we already know about their aspirations.

Both are attractive men, and there are other attractive men in the stable of potential Republican bidders for the state's highest office.

Both are successful young business executives. Both are young enough to permit the kind of energy investment that modern day political campaigning requires. Both are reasonably well known to the leading partisans of most of the counties through previous party organization service.

While we have no wish to disparage their qualities or to make light of their ambition, we would suggest, however, that it is curious that so many of our contemporaries run for the highest offices without showing any interest in the lesser ones as avenues for training and testing.

Most men of the spirit that is required in political life, we would venture, would cast about for a local or district office if they were available for public service at the relatively youthful age of these two. There are honorable opportunities for service in local government, in the legislature, in the counties.

While it is by no means a rule, it is suggestive that the most effective of our own state governors over a century tended to be those who had served an apprenticeship in lesser positions.

The great men of our national political history, from Mr. Jefferson through Mr. Lincoln, and in modern times Franklin Roosevelt and Robert A. Taft, mastered the art of politics and the science of government in their state legislatures.

We wish Mr. Olson and Mr. Kuehn well. We have no desire to discourage their ambition. Wisconsin politics needs more of their kind. But we may be permitted a wistful wish that more of the Olsons and the Kuehns would compete for the humbler places which require their talents in no less degree.

Looking Ahead for the Aged

Compulsory retirement at age 65 and discriminatory practices in hiring which excludes persons of middle age and older from employment were denounced by Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, at a recent press conference. Flemming also is chairman of the Federal Council on Aging and was speaking in that capacity when he made his remarks.

Flemming said retirement at an arbitrary age is a lazy man's device for solving difficult problems in the personnel field. He declared that the employer should take on the task of deciding who should retire. It must be pretty obvious to everyone that the practice of many firms of retiring personnel at age 65 is robbing the American economy of some able and efficient workers. It is true that some of those retired at 65 who are in good health and mentally alert find other things to do but they are in the minority. The provision in the Social Security Act which limits the earnings of those on retirement pay to $1,200 per year prevents many persons capable of production from entering any other employment. Flemming recognized this fact also and came out strongly in favor of increasing the amount a person over 65 may earn and still collect Social Security. He didn't indicate exactly what the limit should be but declared that something could be done.

The limitation on the earnings of the retired person is in the law for the purpose of satisfying those who think it would be easier for them or for others to get work if all persons 65 were retired. This is a false assumption since very few of the younger persons who are seeking jobs could take the places of the highly trained persons who are retired. In many instances the important contributions that the person 65 years of age might make are lost forever.

The result of this retirement program eventually will place a heavy burden upon all employed persons. The more persons there are in retirement drawing money from the Social Security funds the more the present workers will be required to contribute. In that sense it may provide work for some of the younger persons but a good deal of the work they do will be for the purpose of supporting the elderly and they thus will gain nothing from it. Rather than loading up the security rolls with persons who are healthy and capable of working it would seem a wiser course to keep them on the job contributing to Social Security. This would permit the government to give better care to those who are compelled to retire because of their inability to perform their daily tasks.

LaCrosse Points Up Key School Problem

From The Milwaukee Journal

Indignation is being expressed in La Crosse because the city council eliminated from next year's school budget a $48,500 item to improve the public school teachers' pay scale. (The teachers will get the annual pay increments provided in the current schedule.)

The school board had approved the higher scale. But La Crosse is one of about 60 cities in Wisconsin where the city council has final word on the school budget. All the other more than 3,000 school districts, Milwaukee included, are independent of municipal authorities in budget and tax matters.

Supporters of the teacher pay raise in La Crosse are apparently much incensed by the council's cut. The reaction has taken several forms — one a canvass by pupils to get an expression of citizen opinion on a property tax increase to "improve education" in La Crosse. Some aldermen have told privately of receiving threatening phone calls.

Somewhat similar clashes have occurred in others of the 60 "captive" city school districts. And this isn't good. It raises the question again as to whether in these cities, too, the school board shouldn't be given final responsibility for the school budget and its effect on local tax rates. The board is held responsible for the school operation and it has the duty to weigh all school needs in detail. A municipal board, with many other duties and responsibilities, can hardly do that.

Meanwhile much can be done to promote official and community harmony on school operation budgets. Stevens Point had success with a citizens committee on school finances, independent of both board and council. This or some other method for sound review and publicizing of school needs and getting community support, without a free for all fight, is most urgently needed in 60 important Wisconsin cities.

U. S. Interest in Panama Canal Can be Traced Back to 1846

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fifty-six years ago 42 U. S. marines and sailors off the man-of-war Nashville and a handful of American citizens fortified in a stone shed of the Panama Railroad company at Colon faced down 400 Colombian troops under a Col. Torres and provided enough moral and actual support to insure the success of the Panamanian revolt from Columbia. Two days later the United States recognized the rebels as the government of Panama.

As a consequence of the revolt the United States was given complete control of a strip 10 miles wide across the isthmus and permission to construct and operate a canal, something that had been denied the U. S., at the eleventh hour, by Columbia. The bloodless revolt, with the exception of a single man killed in his bed during a naval bombardment of Panama City, brought the Panamanians independence, $10 million and an annuity of $250,000 per year.

Recent Disturbances

Since the first of November disturbances have again shaken the Canal Zone. The demonstrations were not aimed at gaining freedom from a despotic rule or even better conditions for Panama's lucrative rental property.

Groups of nationalists, some shouting, of all things, "Viva Russia," have been exercised over the momentous cause of having the Panamanian flag flown in the zone along with Old Glory. Perhaps the "Viva Russia" fills in for the moment the cause and the apparent lack of historic insight that lends an aura of ingratitude to the demonstrations.

Although historians through the years and newspapers of the day called the Panamanian revolution a prime example of Theodore Roosevelt's "big stick" diplomacy, President Teddy declared, "I hesitate to refer to the injurious insinuations which have been made of complicity by this government in the revolutionary movement in Panama. They are as destitute of foundation as of propriety." Since a nation's cloak and dagger activity can be disowned and a government is not necessarily responsible for the private acts of its citizens, T. R. can be said to have some tenuous basis to his righteous indignation.

However, stripped of its legal mumbo-jumbo and diplomatic gamesmanship, the bare fact of the Panama affair is such that any complaint from that country, even after 56 years, seems unsuitable.

Once Part of Spain

The recent outbursts were tagged to the area's independence of Spain. It became a part of New Granada which in turn became Columbia. In 1846 the United States became bound by treaty, as explained to Congress by President John K. Polk, "to secure to all nations the free and equal right of passage over the isthmus."

Polk explained that a guaranty of neutrality of the province of Panama "is almost indispensable to the construction of a railroad or a canal across the territory." New Granada, he said, would not give up sovereignty over the province and, in 1846, the province was not sufficiently populous or wealthy to establish an independent sovereignty. The treaty he was selling to Congress would provide the necessary continuation of civil government.

Championing the New Granada treaty was a great change for President Polk from Speaker of the House. In 1826, the congressman from Duck River, Tenn., as the speaker, dragged his heels at the suggestion of holding a mere meeting of the free countries of the Americas at Panama in fear of "foreign entanglements."

President John Quincy Adams, invoking the shade of George Washington and the deeds of James Monroe, carried a drawn-out battle to success; but his two envoys arrived at the meeting too late and one died before they could attend the adjourned meeting in Mexico.

Sent U. S. Agent

U. S. interest in the isthmus continued to grow and in 1836 President Andrew Jackson, on instructions from Congress, sent an agent to Panama to investigate the need for a treaty to assure the construction of a canal. His agent reported that "the probability of an early execution of any of the projects . . . is not so great as to render it expedient to open a negotiation at present with any foreign government upon the subject."

At that time the idea of a canal across the isthmus was more than 300 years old. H. de la Serna surveyed a route in 1527 and in 1551 Lopez de Gomara proposed the construction of a canal to the Spanish government.

In 1877, the Colombian government granted a Frenchman named Wyse the exclusive privilege for the construction of a canal.

A stock company was formed with Ferdinand de Lesseps, the builder of the Suez canal, as president and work was started in 1881. In 1889 the firm was bankrupt and in 1892 De Lesseps and his son, Eiffel, were convicted of fraud.

In the meantime, the residents of Columbia, new New Granada, were active in the popular South American pastime, revolt.

Cites the Record

In President Roosevelt's third annual message to Congress, Dec. 7, 1903, he enumerated a "partial list" of insurrections, revolutionary plots and riots numbering 53 in 57 years since the 1846 treaty.

In several of these Americans were hurt and killed and American troops were landed. In all of them, he said, the nation upheld its obligation of keeping the transit of the isthmus open.

In 1903 a treaty was drawn permitting the United States the right to construct a canal. At Bogota matters were in flux. Steps had been taken to replace a native Panamanian with a Columbian as governor with dictatorial

Looking Backward

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Jan. 1, 1881.

On Friday morning about ten o'clock there was a singularly beautiful display in the sky, caused by the air being filled with flying frost particles. There were large sun-dogs with belts of light connecting with a large ball of light near the northern horizon, and in the zenith their hunch in the sky a beautiful rain-bow-hued crescent. It was an unusual sight and attracted much notice.

A grand jury inquiry was in prospect as a result of the house military affairs committee's charges of "deplorable" lobbying in the war department and corruption of government officials.

The state public service commission ruled that day that the Wisconsin Public Service corporation was justified in charging higher wholesale rates for electric current to the city of Two Rivers than were charged to

Under the Capitol Dome

Humphrey's Future in Stevenson's Hands

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who has confirmed a candidacy that had been obvious to every politician in America, will pitch his campaign as an underdog in this key state with its early primary.

The consensus of the informed Democratic politicians of the state is that Humphrey will be challenged here by Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts and that Kennedy is a considerable favorite in the early handicapping.

That general view, combined with the fact that Humphrey has so consistently claimed Wisconsin as a kind of junior constituency and himself as a favorite son will compel him to devote to this state the kind of energy and attention that the late Wendell Wilkie once invested here, or that Harold Stassen and Sen. Taft expended here a little later.

A Wisconsin defeat for the Minnesota would be disastrous. It would, in fact, throw him out of the running as effectively as did the Wisconsin defeat of Wilkie in 1944 kill off the chances of a man who had blitzed the party and captured the Republican nomination only four years earlier.

THE OUTLOOK

The Humphrey posture as a presidential candidate presents curiously contradictory reactions in Wisconsin.

On the one hand some of the leading politicians of the state bear for him a respect compounded with affection that is rarely exhibited by one politician toward another.

On the other, it is fairly evident that many of them do not quite take him seriously in his self-appointed role as a contender.

The first reaction is doubtless the result of proximity and long service on the Wisconsin stump. Humphrey has done more favors to aspiring local politicians than any other man of national acquaintance that they know. Gov. Nelson, Sen. Proxmire and a couple of the Wisconsin congressmen are deeply in his debt. Yet it is a matter of some significance that it is precisely those top men of the Wisconsin party whose backing he needs and has not yet obtained. They are neutral, or tend to favor others.

The very fact of Humphrey's familiarity on the Wisconsin stump also may be a cause for his dismissal from many minds as a serious candidate for national leadership. He has turned up so often in so many places, has become well acquainted with so many people hereabouts, has made so many speeches of such great length that he may have lost some of that dignity and stature that are among the ingredients supposed to be required in a man campaigning for the highest office in the world.

HANDICAP

A truthful account also must acknowledge that Humphrey is laboring under a considerable handicap in the fact that Adlai Stevenson has not yet removed himself from the nomination picture and the corollary fact that many of the more influential Wisconsin Democratic politicians are avoiding commitments in the hope that Stevenson will become the draft choice.

Both Humphrey and Kennedy groups have been trying for months to sign up a majority of the Democratic county chairmen for their respective causes. They have failed to do so and one principal reason is the existence of a considerable reservoir of Stevenson sentiment. Humphrey's position as a liberal liberal, on all of the issues and the causes acknowledged by liberals today, makes him the logical heir to the Stevenson position.

Put it another way, should Stevenson unequivocally withdraw himself from the nomination picture tomorrow, Sen. Humphrey's task would be infinitely easier in Wisconsin and his prospects would be 50-50 against Kennedy here, at the least.

But the man from Illinois is quite evidently not going to withdraw himself. According to all the signs he will accept another nomination, if it comes to him without direction solicitation. In that situation, Sen. Humphrey faces an arduous campaign road in Wisconsin, with the distinct possibility of defeat and ejection from the race at the end.

Dirt Begins to Fly

In 12 days a much more advantageous treaty was drawn and soon "the dirt was flying" as T. R. said. In 1913 the canal was finished and dedicated in 1914.

When Columbian oil became a prize in 1921, the Harding administration paid a $25 million indemnity to Columbia for our part in the Panamanian revolt.

Roosevelt's righteous indignation was deflated but only after he was in his grave and unable to fight back; but there is nothing in the history of the revolution to give Panama affront.

Those "Viva Russia" shouts must explain the recent outbreaks and it is hard to think of what T. R. might have done in a similar situation. It is unlikely the reaction would have been docile.

factories operating in Two Rivers.

The house committee of the Y. M. C. A. approved a new appraisal of the association building and contents and arranged for an 80 percent co-insurance clause in present contracts. The change will enable the association to get a reduction in insurance rates.

Phil Ottman, Wesley Schroeder, Stanley Zahrt and Sidney Cotton were re-elected and Melvin Buesing and Ernest Ruppel elected junior directors of the Y. M. C. A., according to the report of C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary.

Carl Fose was elected president of Eagles' Relief association. Otto Kramhold was chosen vice president, George Coons, secretary, and Oscar Kunitz, treasurer.

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, Dec. 31, 1949

The tired old "forties," having run their stormy course of life and death, bowed out that night, and turned the world over to a brand new decade. At midnight, men and women around the world clasped hands with a new year, and a new era. It was an occasion of cherished hopes and promise, of determination, of optimism mingled with a trembling fear, of echoes of the past sounding a future of good or evil, or an end and a beginning. And at all this, men would celebrate in many ways.

Appleton became sole owner that day of the temporary housing units it held jointly since 1945 with the federal public housing administration, according to a letter received that morning by Mayor Robert L. Roemer from the Chicago office of PHA.

Tabor S. Davis, director of the Outagamie county pension department since Sept. 1, 1937, submitted his resignation to the executive and pension advisory committees of the county board that morning.

Gordon B. Wasinger, Menasha, was to be among those listed in the 1949-50 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Color Can be Used For Pine Paneling

Apply Stain With Soft Cloth After Surface Is Prepared by Sanding; Depth of Shade Can be Controlled

BY ANDY LANG

While pine paneling is usually given a clear finish, the practice of finishing it in bright modern colors, either pastels or deep tones, is becoming increasingly popular.

This is particularly true of the western pine region woods, such as ponderosa, Idaho white, sugar and lodgepole pine, incense and red cedar, douglas and white fir, larch and engelmann spruce. The low resin content of these woods enables them to take, and hold a stain well.

As in all types of finishing, the first step is to sand the surface of the wood carefully. Use a medium coarse paper to remove rough imperfections, a fine paper to complete the surfacing job. It is important—if the paneling is to be used in a bathroom, kitchen or other high-moisture area—to apply a sealer to all sides, ends and edges of the wood.

A stain can be made at home by mixing oil-base paint with a mineral thinner or by using colors-in-oil diluted with mineral thinner. However, most persons prefer to buy ready-made stains that come in a variety of colors. The stain is brushed on liberally, then rubbed off with a soft cloth. The depth of color can be controlled by the length of time the stain is allowed to remain before it is rubbed off. The longer the wait between application and the rubbing, the darker the tone. To get exactly the tone you want, experiment with a sample of the paneling.

An interesting two-tone effect can be created by alternating the colors, overlapping them slightly and blending them by rubbing before both are entirely dry. Knots or grain can be highlighted, if desired, by rubbing these areas with steel wool.

To be certain that the stain does not bleed through at some later time, apply a coat of sealer after the stain is thoroughly dry, rub it lightly with fine sandpaper.

Two Coats Used
Two coats of clear varnish generally are used over the sealer. The varnish is first brushed on in the direction of the grain. Then, without re-filling, the brush is stroked across the grain. Finally, with a nearly dry brush, you finish with the grain. A light sanding is recommended between coats.

A good paste wax often is used over the varnish. Incidentally, it is possible to get a good finish by applying the paste wax directly to the sealer, although it will not be as durable as the varnish finish.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: Every now and then our kitchen sink gets clogged up, then after a while the water goes down slowly and it's all right for a few weeks. Is any special skill needed to remove the clean-out plug at the bottom of the trap elbow? I am fairly certain that's where the clogging is taking place.

ANSWER: It's all right to remove the clean-out plug. But be sure you put a pail or other container beneath it before the plug is unscrewed; otherwise the water and debris in the pipe will run onto the floor. After the plug is off, poke around in the elbow to dislodge any grease or other matter that may be there. Before putting back the plug, see whether the washer on it needs replacing. When the plug is tightly in place, turn on the hot water and allow it to run for 10 to 15 minutes.

QUESTION: How can I estimate how much enamel will be necessary to paint my kitchen? I already have taken the measurements of the walls and they add up to 460 square feet.

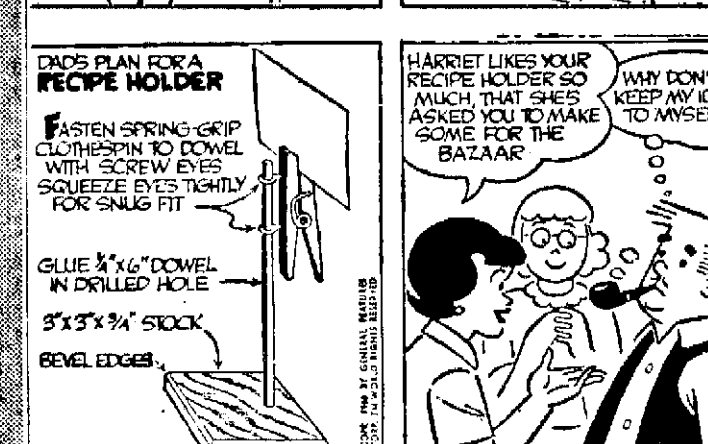

ANSWER: Generally, one gallon of enamel will cover 400 to 500 square feet. This varies somewhat, depending on the kind and color of the paint already on the walls. Your dealer often will allow you to buy an extra can of paint on the understanding that it can be returned if it is not opened.

QUESTION: I'm making a bookcase and intend to buy wrought iron legs for it. Should the wrought iron be given a coat of black paint or clear varnish?

ANSWER: Not if you are looking for the dullish finish usually associated with wrought iron. But if a glossy black finish is desired—perhaps to match other furniture in the same room—then a metal paint can be used effectively.

Plants of Future Are Available Now

Develop Strawberry So Hardy It Withstands 50-Below Conditions

Are you interested in growing a strawberry that is so hardy it survives 50-below with edible seeds. Called the "Plants of the Future" that are available to gardeners right now, according to an article in a national gardening magazine. Chief Bemidji strawberry is being introduced this year, and its large crops of sweet-red berries will be welcomed by northern gardeners with memories of strawberry plantings being wiped out by cold winters.

Fight Crabgrass
Park bluegrass, developed by the University of Minnesota, will be one more weapon for gardeners who already have "tried anything" to get rid of crabgrass. Many nurserymen feel that Hall's Hardy Almond is a tree that will become more popular as the years go by. It will grow anywhere peaches grow, adding an important new food plant in many gardens.

What is a plant of the future anyway? One expert defines it as one that measures up to the changing conditions of American horticulture and satisfies the constantly changing demands of gardeners.

Actually, a plant of the future isn't necessarily new. Plants that have been around for many years can suddenly have their true worth recognized, or gradually become more popular as the years go by. Euonymus alatus compactus, popularly known as the burning bush, is such a plant. It is a shrub of many virtues, having beautiful colored foliage in the fall and attractive corky bark in the winter.

Vegetables of the future will include many high-vitamin varieties, as home gardeners want more food value from their home-grown crops. Prof. A. F. Yeager of the New Hampshire experiment station has produced a squash with edible seeds. Called the winter squash, it has a very rich, nut-like flavor. Squash seeds are an excellent source of protein and unsaturated oils.

Improved Tomatoes
And don't overlook the improved tomatoes, such as double-rich and caro red. Double-rich is especially high in vitamin C and caro red is an orange tomato high in vitamin A.

Allgold sweet potato is another plant of the future. It is several times richer than ordinary sweet potatoes in vitamin A, and produces large tubers of good flavor. Sweet potatoes are not hard to grow if you pack plenty of humus into the soil and set out the plants on top of a ridge.

One of the major projects on the agenda of rose breeders is the creation of new plants with increased disease and insect resistance, that do not require constant spraying with toxic chemicals.

Suggest New Year's Resolutions for Today's Women

BY DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

New Year's resolutions are good for the soul, whether you keep them or not. So here are a few I'd like to suggest for today's women:

1. I shall try with all my heart to be fresh, smiling and glamorous at breakfast. Even if Junior upsets his orange juice. Even if Mary refuses to eat her eggs. Even if my husband complains about the coffee and goes off in the snow without his rubbers.

2. I shall endeavor to make my home look like the color pictures in the best shelter magazines, although how you keep the family from marring the scene with scattered galoshes, raincoats, snowsuits, old newspapers and homework I haven't quite figured out yet.

3. I shall attempt never to introduce an unpleasant subject at the dinner table, even though Suzy spends most of mealtime on the telephone and Junior brings a live frog to the table. Even though both brought home report cards marked unsatisfactory, and even though their father said if they couldn't do any better than this, why pay all this private school tuition. Why not put them to work?

4. I shall do my best to remain calm, capable, sweet and forbearing at all times, even when the electricity goes off right at dinner time and I have to finish the beef stew on the backyard barbecue grill. Even when the water pipes freeze and the washing machine goes on the blink, and I can't bribe a repair man to come within two weeks.

No Histrionics

5. I shall never indulge in female histrionics, even though I do a fulltime job at the office and then have to come home and get dinner and do the dishes. Even though the children forget to make their own beds or hang up their clothes. Even though my husband converses volubly on the charm and talents of Sally Jones next door, who has no children, an inherited income and nothing to do except keep herself beautiful.

6. I shall try to live up to that ideal of the modern woman always extolled in the women's magazines — the wonder girl who runs a brilliant career with one hand, a home and family with the other, community activities, social life, PTA politics and artistic hobbies with the third, fourth, fifth and sixth hand, and always is fascinating.

glamorous, scintillating and the elite of every party, if it kills her.

7. I shall become a gourmet cook, and serve up every meal in true escotier style, even though my family prefers hamburgers. They should be exposed to the finer things of life.

Gracious Living

8. I shall live graciously, come heck or high water. I shall always have flowers and candlelight with dinner, sunshine and laughter with breakfast and gay companionship with lunch. I shall tie satin bows on the kitchen chairs when life gets dull, and make charming table mats out of old bath towels, dyed in my automatic washing machine and embroidered on my automatic sewing machine.

9. I shall take advantage of leisure time, gained through modern push-button housekeeping, by improving my mind and getting acquainted with the higher things of life, even if I have to do it between 2 and 4 in the morning, after I've finished running the electric dishwasher, putting tomorrow's dinner in the automatic oven and making a list of the buttons to be pushed the next day.

10. When the whole family seems unbearable I shall ask myself how it would be to live without them, and things will immediately seem better.

Iran's Ex-Queen Soraya is shown with her dinner companion, Harold Krupp, 33, who appeared to be enjoying festivities at the Swiss ski resort of St. Moritz where both were spending the holidays. Krupp is the younger brother of German industrialist, Alfred Krupp, and has been a constant escort of the former queen, whose romance with Italian Prince Raimondo Orsini had been expected to blossom into an engagement announcement before the year's end. The prince cancelled a reservation at St. Moritz where he was scheduled to join Soraya.

Outspoken Girl Friend

"... Do you think he can be trusted? Tell me, please. I've been hurt before and I don't want it to happen again."

There are indications of temper, moodiness and lack of emotional control in your handwriting. Stop looking for trouble.

You speak your mind very freely according to those letters "o" and "a", written so wide open that they resemble the letter "u."

Your sharply pointed letters "n" indicate a tendency to be critical as well as outspoken. You are so emotional that you may not always be altogether fair in your conclusions.

Your lines of writing slant downward, revealing a dejected state of mind. Your present "chip on the shoulder" attitude isn't making you happy. Be as considerate of those you love as you would want them to be to you.

Your boy friend's writing shows a retiring, gentle, withdrawn nature and rather an inferiority complex.

There is more likelihood of your "hurling him" than vice versa. In fact from the way his lines of writing also sink on the right side of the page, he was not too happy when he wrote this note. Your distrust may be getting him down! Be kind.

Miss Stafford welcomes letters from her readers. They cannot be acknowledged but the most interesting ones will be used in her column. (Copyright 1960)

Kentucky Family Plies Ancient Potter's Trade

BY JULES LOM

Bybee, Ky. — Back in the old days, when the world was made on a potter's wheel.

Walter Cornelson doesn't hold to that, but he knows well the antiquity of the craft. He is the fourth — maybe fifth — Cornelson to ply the potter's trade at the old log building at Bybee.

"I guess my son will take over from me," says Cornelson. "He's only 11, but he's been turning clay several years now."

Young Robert Walter Cornelson will inherit a thriving business when it comes his turn. Pottery from Bybee is sold in each of the 50 states and Canada, and the tiny shop turns out about 500 pieces a day.

No Advertising

Yet the Bybee Pottery spends "nary a penny" on advertising, Cornelson says, beyond the crude, weather-faded sign on the highway approach side which says the firm has been operating since 1845.

It was natural some early settler should build a kiln at Bybee. Nearby is the old bed of the Kentucky River, rich with clay washed pure white.

"It can be used just as God made it," Cornelson said. "All we do is add branch water and grind it in the pug mill to make it smooth."

The mill, now powered by electricity, was driven for 34 years by a horse named Henry. "We finally got rid of Henry last year," Cornelson says. "He got too doggone mean."

Inside, the shop groans with curiosity.

The Bybee Pottery offers 226 different items, and shelf after cluttered shelf sags under the ceramics. On the inside surface of each piece are the tell-tale spiral finger marks of the potter, indicating they were hand turned.

The shelves occupy nearly all available space, floor to ceiling. Where there are no shelves, pieces are stacked on the floor.

The "display room" serves mainly as a store room for mail orders. "We don't get 25 customers a day," Cornelson says. Often the room is left unattended.

Small Town

Bybee, on state road 52 out of Richmond, Ky., is not even shown on most road maps. But the few customers who venture off the beaten path usually are rewarded.

The shop's uneven floor is raised six inches by accumulated clay droppings of four generations. The oaken roof and walls are speckled with the bits that have flown from the worn table where Walter beats the air out of the raw material before putting it on the wheel.

"College ceramics students call it wedging the clay," he says. "We just call it beating it."

He holds the big lump high above his head, and splats it down onto the table again and again until it is smooth throughout.

Then he weighs a portion on an ancient balance — each piece of pottery must be uniform — and throws the clod onto the center of the wheel. The wheel spins.

The potter's hand dips into a bowl of water, muddying frequent dippings. His right hand holds a small wooden paddle to shape the object on the outside. His left hand presses the clay against the paddle from the inside.

A bowl rises from the wheel incredibly fast.

Then the piece dries, is dipped into one of 18 Cornelson-developed glazes — formulas handed down father to son — and fired in the kiln.

Walter split a sample piece of pottery from top to bottom. He ran his finger up and down the edge, indicating its uniform thickness.

"That's what makes a potter," he says.

"You've got to have the feel of it. Anybody can make a vase or a mug or a bowl. But the man who makes 150 of them without varying the size

Family Diary

When I was a child we did not take our Christmas tree down until the day after New Year's. Even then, after it had occupied one end of the living room for two weeks or more, its dismantlement was greeted with tears and outraged howls from my brother, sister and myself.

It seems that with the passage of years trees and children haven't changed a bit. Early last week after taking out the vacuum and cleaning the freshly vacuumed floor, she darted off to tell Sally my plot.

But Sally didn't need to be told. Smelling trouble, she appeared around the corner of the living room, tears already in her eyes and ready to spill over if the occasion demanded. "I've hardly even seen the Christmas tree! I've hardly even sat under the Christmas tree at all!" With that she dragged her new little rocking chair up under the tree and began rocking and staring furiously.

"Well," I said, backing down, "we'll see—when Daddy gets home." I seldom resort to this back-passing device, but there are times—and I felt this was one of them. That night, however, the children reached their father's ear before I did.

Children Rebel to Dismantling Tree

By Jeannette Griffith

Flanked by Libby and Sally he came out in the kitchen where I was getting dinner. There was a pained expression on his face. "What's this I hear about taking the tree down early? We've never taken the tree down until after New Year's and the kids go back to school."

Son Rebels

Tommy, who I thought could not have cared less, came thundering up the basement steps. "Yeah!" he said truculently. "What is this?"

"It wasn't a really fresh tree in the first place," I said, determined not to give up without a struggle. "And it's shedding so terribly. . . ."

"But, Aunt Jeannie . . ."

Mitzi, who if anything is unpredictable, appeared in the doorway. "... it's still awfully pretty when its lights are lighted." There was a softness in her face that I do not too often see there. She beckoned. "Come and look."

Of course, that did it. The tree with its multi-colored lights, its tinsel and its ornaments saved from year to year, did look beautiful. We stood there happily gazing at it for perhaps a minute, warmed up in a post-Christmas glow. Then everyone dispersed and went about his separate business.

I might add that no one to my knowledge has as much as looked at the Christmas tree since. It sits in the living room softly shedding its needles, and I bide my time until Monday morning when the children go back to school. (Copyright 1960)

Wife Tires of Mate's Doting Mother—17 Years Too Late

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN: We've been married 17 years and have two lovely girls. My husband has no bad habits except he works when it doesn't interfere with his hunting, fishing and photography. His mother has sent us sizeable checks periodically so we haven't gone hungry. But I've lost all love and respect for this man. I manage to put up a happy front for the girls' sake. Shall I leave him now or make a go of it until the girls are out of high school? Yes, I've tried to encourage him in all his jobs (he's had about 30) but he doesn't stick with anything. Advise me, please. —Disgusted

Dear Disgusted: You recite your husband's faults without realizing the part you've played in the failure of the marriage. Wife who would permit her husband to accept "sizeable checks periodically" from his mother promotes the dependency which destroys his self respect and her love.

Your husband doesn't stick with anything because he doesn't have to. If you'd have made it plain from the outset that he was responsible for his family's support and insisted he return Mama's first check, it might have been the makings of him.

Chances are slim that you can remake him now, but it's worth a try. Insist that he accept his responsibilities. If he refuses tell him to get out—then go to work yourself.

DEAR ANN: I'm 21, my boyfriend just passed the bar and is a lawyer with a large firm. Although he writes me daily (I'm away at college) and tells me he loves me madly, I get different reports from my uncle who is in the same law firm. He says Eddie is taking out three secretaries in the office and having a ball. All the women are older than he is.

I mentioned this to Eddie on the phone last week when I just couldn't hold it in any longer. He said these gals are a pack of man-hungry divorcees who chase after him and he wants to be a "good guy." He assures me I have nothing to worry about. Is this reasonable?—Gemma.

Dear Gemma: So these man-hungry dames are chasing after your helpless little man and he's trying to be a "good guy"? My hunch is he can run faster than that—if he wants to.

You don't mention being engaged, which is good. This character isn't ready to settle down. Tell him he's free to go with whomever he pleases and you'd like the same privilege.

DEAR ANN: What do you think of a good friend who lives in the same apartment building and has the nerve to ask to borrow my poker chips and felt table cover, and then not invite me to the game? I am so hurt I don't know what to do. She told me she's having a game for "the older girls." I am 65. Please tell me your opinion.—Excluded

Dear Excluded: Consider this a compliment. She looks upon you as a young friend and what could be higher praise?

Why not offer to bake a cake for the old dames and tell her you'll be looking forward to the next game with the younger set.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Engagements Of Area Girls Announced

Menasha — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Rodenack, route 3, Berlin, have announced the engagement of their daughter Myrta, to Neil Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, Redgranite.

Mr. Davis is an engineering student at Michigan College of Mining and Technology, Houghton. Miss Rodenack is a first grade teacher in the Menasha public schools.

Janet Blair Prefers Happy Plots, Parts

Television May Be Her Choice, Rather Than Stage

BY BOB THOMAS
A TV-Movie Writer

Hollywood — You've got to say this for Janet Blair — she's happy.

She admits it. Perhaps she's playing Nellie Forbush in the road company "South Pacific" did it for her. She's a cockeyed optimist herself, and she comes across that way on television. You can see for yourself when she plays another Nellie (Bly) in an original musical about the newsgal's around-the-world junket. It will be televised in the Dinah Shore time Sunday night.

"I believe people want to see happy things," she commented between rehearsals. "I certainly do. I found that out when I went east to see some shows. First I saw 'Sweet Bird of Youth.' The acting was great, but I was fed up with sick people. Then I went to see 'Gypsy,' which is hokey and lightweight. I had a wonderful time.

"Sure, there's a lot of sickness in the world and something should be done about it. But I don't think it should be presented in the guise of entertainment.

"One of the nicest things I've gotten out of the television shows I've done is the mail — from governors, bank presidents and just plain citizens. A great many of them comment on the happy feeling they got from watching me. So I guess other people want to see happiness, too."

Just such a reaction may cause Janet to remain a TV star instead of returning to the stage.

"I always thought all my training was heading me in the direction of being a musical comedy star, which would mean the stage," she said.

"Now I'm not so sure I want the theater. Television has given me more satisfaction than anything I've ever done. It's exciting, it's always changing and you get an immediate response from the audience."

She already has turned down "Saratoga" and other shows. Besides acting as Dinah's summer replacement, she has been doing some mid-year subbing, too. Her next one will be a Mexican adventure with Gilbert Roland and Ricardo Montalban. Janet will be doing dance numbers all over Mexico City.

Couple Now Has Greeting Cards From 50 States

Mrs. William Dery, 120 S. State street, recently received a Christmas card from Gov. and Mrs. William F. Quinn of Hawaii.

With the addition of this card, Mrs. Dery now has received Christmas cards from the governors of all 50 states. She and her husband, William Dery, began the project last year by sending out to all and received 49 back. (Hawaii wasn't a state yet.) With the addition of Hawaii they completed the collection.

The Derys expect to continue the exchange in the future, now that connections have been established. They live in White Lake but have the cards sent to their business address on State street.

The couple also received a card from Mayor Clarence Mitchell after receiving their 50th governor's card. It read "Congratulations" and included a picture of Dery and his 49 cards.

Mrs. E. R. Bollenbeck Residential Chairman Of Red Cross Drive

Mrs. Edward R. Bollenbeck, 1600 S. Connell street, has been named residential division chairman for Appleton during the 1960 Red Cross fund drive.

A. Selle, Outagamie county campaign chairman, said today.

Mrs. Bollenbeck, who holds a B.S. degree from the University of Wisconsin, was a speech correctionist in Palatine, Ill., prior to serving in the same capacity in Appleton public schools from 1954-1956. She now is a special committee chairman on the board of the American Association of University Women.

Serving under Mrs. Bollenbeck as area chairmen are Mrs. E. Bradley Shepard, Mrs. Donald Herring, Mrs. Allan Goodyear, Mrs. Bruce McEachern, and Mrs. Elwood Dillingham. The residential division of the fund drive is tentatively scheduled for the week of March 7.

Circus Car Donated to Baraboo Show

Advertising Unit Given Museum as Memorial by Woman

Baraboo — An advertising car once used by the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus has been acquired by the Circus World Museum through a $3,700 cash donation by a Baraboo woman.

The 80-foot railroad car purchased from the now abandoned Ringling winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla., will become a permanent exhibit at the museum.

The donor, Mrs. Alma Waite, specified that the exhibit be a memorial to her father, Henry Moeller, Sr., and her brothers, Henry Jr., and Corwin Moeller, who built carriages and wagons for many of the nation's top circuses, including the Ringlings. The Ringling brothers established their circus in Baraboo and the museum is located at the show's former winter quarters.

The advertising car—referred to as a bill car or advance car in circus parlance—was built as an Army hospital car early in World War II. The Ringlings bought 25 cars from the government in 1947 and used all but this one as sleepers for performers and staff members. It was last used by Ringlings in 1956 when the big show left the rails.

With this car and four other Ringling cars purchased previously, the Circus World Museum will be able to show visitors how the tented shows traveled by train in their heyday.

Sheinwold Discard of Heart Queen Key Play

Outdoor types tell us sometimes how an animal will escape from a trap by biting off its leg. (I usually escape from such stories by walking through the nearest door.) But stories of this kind teach us bridge players not only to stay indoors where we belong but also how to escape from a trap.

Opening lead — H 5
West opens the five of hearts, and East wins with the ace. East returns a heart, and you win with the king.

There you are, with your queen of hearts caught in the trap.

If you play the hand incautiously, you lead a club to dummy and return a trump toward your hand. West wins the first trump and leads a third heart. East ruffs, and you lose your contract as well as the queen of hearts.

Discard Queen
The way to get out of the trap is to discard the queen of hearts. After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, cash the ace of diamonds. Lead a club to dummy and cash the king of diamonds to get rid of the queen of hearts.

Now you can limp home safely. Go after the trumps and give the opponents their two trump tricks. The rest are yours.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold: S-5 4, H-A 8, D-Q J 6 5 2, C-Q 10 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one NT. The hand is not quite strong enough for a response of two diamonds. The response at the level of two in a new suit should show about 10 points in high cards, or the ability to raise partner's major suit later.

Hollywood Star Loses Weight in Switch to TV

BY JAMES BACON
Hollywood — June Allyson, latest movie actress to switch to television, now weighs only 83 pounds.

"And that gives you an idea of how hard my husband is working me," says she. In her years at MGM, June usually weighed around 97 pounds — a weight at which you can't afford to lose even an ounce.

"We didn't realize how soft a job we had making movies," says June.

The weight loss only bothers June on one score. Her 11-year-old daughter can wear all June's clothes — and sometimes does.

June got into television reluctantly, she says. Dick Powell, her husband, is president of Four Star productions and a tycoon in the industry. One night he was entertaining a group of sponsors.

"I thought I was just being a charming hostess for my husband," June recalls. The next day the sponsors asked Powell if his wife would be interested in television.

June says Powell sold her off into television and then came home and let her in on the secret.

Washington Closes Series With 44-8 Embarrassment of Badgers

Wisconsin's End Jim Holmes, left, and tackle Dan Lanphear, right, make a grab for speedy Washington halfback George Fleming (25) as he returns a punt to the Washington 27. The action occurred in the second quarter of the Badgers' 44-8 loss in the Rose bowl at Pasadena Friday. Fleming was a big factor in the Huskies' victory as he returned three punts for a total of 122 yards, one of them for a touchdown.

Schloredt, Fleming Stun UW

Pasadena, Calif. — (AP) — The 13-year Rose bowl pact between the Big Ten and the now defunct Pacific Coast conference ended with a few touches of irony. Washington's young Huskies surprised favored Wisconsin, 44-8, Friday to close out the series. Wisconsin was the only Big Ten team to have lost previously under the just-expired pact. The Badgers were whipped, 7-0, by Southern California in 1953. Aside from Wisconsin's 1960 and 1963 losses, the Big Ten teams made the annual New Year's day trek look like a plague of locusts to West coast fans. Washington's triggermen were a brilliant quarterback, Bob Schloredt, and a speedy halfback, George Fleming. It was the Huskies' first triumph in five trips to Pasadena. Many of the 100,000 fans who sat in the chilly stadium were startled when the inspired Huskies exploded for 17 points in the first quarter.

Turning Point "The turning point was when Fleming kicked that field goal and gave us a 10-0 lead," said Washington's young (32) Coach Jim Owens. "That put us in control and Wisconsin began to press."

Owens said the key to victory was Washington's smaller but faster line which manhandled the Badger offense all afternoon. "Washington was just more aggressive than we were," said Wisconsin Coach Milt Bruhn. "We were out of sync."

Wisconsin handed the ball over on fumbles four times. Coach Bruhn blamed the bobbles on "just good hard tackling — nothing else."

Schloredt and Fleming — named the game's most valuable players — wrecked the Badgers in the opening quarter. Schloredt marched the Huskies 48 yards in 10 plays for a touchdown and Fleming kicked a 36-yard field goal and ran back a punt 53 yards for a touchdown before the Badgers knew they were in a ball game.

Wiesner Scores Wisconsin got its eight points in the second quarter when quarterback Dale Hackbart directed the Badgers 69 yards in nine plays. Neenah halfback Tom Wiesner wiggled into the end zone from four yards out. Hackbart faked a conversion attempt and passed to end Allan Schooner in the end zone for two points.

"We came down here to win and that's what we did," said Fleming, who picked up 122 yards on three punt returns. "Our line was the difference," said the modest Schloredt. "We out-hit 'em and out-fought 'em all the way."

Five schools of the collapsed PCC—Washington, California, UCLA, Southern Cal and Stanford—have regrouped into the Athletic Association of Western Universities. The Big Five is not bound to invite a Big Ten team for the Rose bowl.

However, the West coast clubs can select a Big Ten team for the grand-daddy of all post-season bowl games. And the Big Ten school is free to accept or reject the offer.

Sad Milt Bruhn Says Huskies 'All Took Off Like a Machine'

Owens Feels Game Was Won In the Line

Pasadena, Calif. — (AP) — "They all took off like a machine," said Wisconsin Coach Milt Bruhn of the Washington Huskies who crushed his Badgers in the Rose Bowl Friday.

"The whole Washington club played inspired football," said the dejected Bruhn. "I knew they were going to be tough but not tough and so fast too."

In trying to tell why the Badgers were smashed, 44-8, Bruhn said: "The poorest."

"To sum it up, I feel we made mistakes, fumbled too much and gave the ball away too many times. And, of course, our tackling was very poor."

"The game," the coach said, "will rank among the poorest played by Wisconsin this fall. Just look at the score."

He wouldn't say that Washington was the best team Wisconsin played all year, but said, "Let's say they compared favorably with any."

The game's turning point, according to Bruhn, was George Fleming's great 53-yard punt.

Warriors Face Loyola Tonight

Marquette's Biggest Problem Is Foes' Center Red

Milwaukee — (AP) — The Marquette basketball team, winner of six of nine games in December, opens the new year tonight with hopes of a victory over strong Loyola of Chicago.

The Warriors have won 20 straight in the Arena, scene of tonight's clash, but there are reasons why the twenty-first may be hard to get.

Work Hard Marquette's biggest trouble is scoring punch by the guards.

The biggest problem presented by Loyola is the Chicago squad's scoring ace, 6-foot-6 Clarence Red. He is getting able aid this season from equal-sized Jim Gorman, who missed most of the last campaign because of injuries.

The Warriors beat Loyola twice last season, but Red, playing against the taller Mike Moran, scored 40 points in the two clashes. He has

Bobby Franklin QBs Club to Easy Victory

New Orleans — (AP) — When Mississippi fell, 7-3, to Louisiana State last Oct. 31, many Rebel followers blamed the loss on Coach Johnny Vaught's cautiousness.

Vaught didn't have much to say then. But Friday in the Sugar bowl he answered his critics with a style of football they should have liked as the powerful Mississippians ripped LSU, 21-0.

Quarterback Bobby Franklin, the game's most valuable player, never gave the devotees of wide open action a chance to grumble.

Syracuse Stars Yates, Schwedes Wed, Sign Boston Pro Pact

Dallas, Tex. — (AP) — Wedding bells ring today for Gerhard Schwedes and Bob Yates, stars of the Syracuse football team that beat Texas, 23-14, in the Cotton bowl.

Schwedes marries Lou Peronius of Elmira, N.Y., and Yates weds Sarah Morrison of Portland, Maine, in ceremonies at Perkins chapel of Southern Methodist university.

All are 21 and seniors at Syracuse.

Friday night, Schwedes, halfback from Whitehouse, N.Y., and Yates, tackle from Montpelier, Vt., were signed to contracts by the Boston club of the American Football league.

Louisiana State Halfback Don Purvis attempts to hurdle Mississippi's James Anderson, but without luck as he goes down in the second quarter of Friday's Sugar bowl game. Coming in at right are Darryl Jenkins of LSU (10) and Larry Grantham (88) of Mississippi. Mississippi trounced LSU, 21-0, Friday.

The board of directors of the old Fond du Lac baseball club of the Wisconsin State league has re-elected officers. The club has also frozen $948 in assets "just in case" the city wishes to return to organized ball.

During the years since the State league folded in 1953, the Fondy club has donated funds to youth groups in the city.

It is interesting to note that about half (three) of the college basketball teams in the United States which failed to win at least one game on the road last season are from Wisconsin. They were: Lawrence, Ripon and the UW Badgers.

Al Monchak, for two seasons manager of the Cedar Rapids farm club in the Three-I league, will pilot Austin in the Class AA Texas league for the parent Milwaukee Braves, next season. Monchak, the only returning skipper in the 3-I last season, replaces Ernie White who will manage Sacramento in the Pacific Coast loop.

The Baltimore Orioles, new parent club of the Fox Cities Foxes, have spent $7,000,000 on player procurement and development in the six years since the move of the franchise from St. Louis.

Last year's figure was $928,000. The Orioles operated at a loss during the 1959 season.

averaged 20.3 points as Loyola split its first eight games. Ever since getting pounded by DePaul last week, the Warriors have been laboring under the direction of Coach Ed Hickey to get the team back into top condition. Hickey also has been working to get better production from his reserves.

Tonight's game, the first of six at home for Marquette, will be broadcast (WISN) starting at 8 p.m. St. Norbert is the next Warrior opponent, followed to town by Louisville, Detroit, St. John's of Brooklyn and Bradley.

Herb Elliott Finishes Third in Slow Race

Sorrento, Australia — (AP)—World record holder Herb Elliott, in his first competitive run of the season, finished a weary third today in a slowly run 1,000-meter race.

Competing on a rough, grass track and in a cold wind, Elliott looked only a shadow of his old self as he finished 15 yards behind the winner.

Bradley-St. Louis Tilt Tops Card as Loop Play Begins

Georgia Tech, Kentucky Fives Meet in Big SEC Contest

By The Associated Press

The serious business of deciding conference champions gets under way in earnest on the college basketball front tonight with at least two important games on the card. The big one is at Peoria, Ill. where Bradley entertains St. Louis in a Missouri Valley clash that—even so early in the year—has title overtones between the two main pre-tenders to Cincinnati's league throne. Bradley — the only league team to beat Cincinnati last season—finished second to the Bearcats and St. Louis was third.

Favorites Meet

St. Louis (8-2) is ranked No. 6 in the current Associated Press poll and Bradley is No. 9 Cincinnati (9-0), riding along at the top of the heap, has a non-league date with Dayton.

Two of the favorites for the Southeastern conference crown — Georgia Tech and Kentucky—meet in Lexington. Only one league game has been played, so this is really the start of hostilities. Georgia Tech (8-1) is tenth-ranked and Kentucky (6-3) is No. 13. Kentucky is the favorite for the title since defending champion Mississippi State has lost Bailey Howell. Auburn, which finished in a second-place tie with the Wildcats, goes against Mississippi State. Vanderbilt, another strong contender, plays Tennessee.

Big Ten Starts

The Big Ten also begins operations, with Indiana, No. 7 in the country and one of the favorites for the title, meeting Purdue in the top game. Iowa is at Minnesota and defending champion, but depleted, Michigan State at Wisconsin.

The regular-season scramble on the West coast gets underway. California, No. 3, and boasting a winning streak of 25 games, plays Southern Cal, in the top attraction. The Trojans don't figure to be any problem.

The only important action Friday night was in the Pointsettia bowl in Greenville, S. C., where The Citadel defeated Bucknell, 95-73, and Furman crushed Harvard, 87-69. The Citadel and Furman will meet for the championship tonight.

Ex-Packer Assistant George L. Carey Dies

Worcester, Mass. — (AP)—George L. Carey, former assistant coach of the National Football league Green Bay Packers, died Friday. His age was not available. Carey came to Wisconsin as head football coach at St. Norbert college at DePere in 1919. He joined the Packers a year later and remained through the 1921 season.

On those two occasions Tarkenton rifled long passes down the middle to Bill McKenny and Aaron Box, respectively, for touchdowns. Durward Pennington kicked the extra points and that was it: Georgia 14, Missouri 0.

Not Best "We didn't play our best game," Georgia Coach Wally Butts said. "Our morale was not good. It definitely was our worst game of the year."

"We came down to win, but the best team won," said Missouri Coach Danny Devine. "We planned to rush the passer, and the two touchdowns they got were when their passer got away from our rushing."

Rush the passer they did, with the result the Bulldogs completed only nine of 21 tosses for a total of 128 yards, far below their usual performance.

Phil Snowden, the lanky Missouri passer, was rated only so-so in comparison with Georgia's artists. Snowden completed 11 of 17 for 152 yards, and the over-all Missouri passing record was 14 of 24 for 180 yards.

16 Olympic Hopefuls in Westby Meet

Westby—(AP)—A field of 94 jumpers—including 16 Olympic team candidates—are entered in Sunday's 37th annual Snowflake Ski Club tournament.

Leading the field is defending champion Gene Kotlarek of Duluth, Minn., who jumped 220 feet here last year, just three feet short of the hill record set in 1957 by Juhan Karinen of Finland.

Other top contenders include Billy Olson and Keith Zuelke of Eau Claire; Rudy Maki of Ishpeming, Mich.; Willie Erickson, Iron Mountain, Mich.; and Lyle Swenson of Westby, the 1959 national junior champion.

Off the field activities featured a third major league movement in the rise of the Continental league. The year also will be remembered as the one in which the first inter-league trading period was established whereby players from one league were traded to the other without waivers.

Sherry Paces Dodgers

1959 Baseball Season Rates as One Of the Most Surprising in History

BY JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

It is doubtful whether any baseball season of modern times produced as many surprises as the 1959 campaign. The Los Angeles Dodgers, who had finished seventh the year before, became the world champions.

The biggest surprise was Larry Sherry, a virtual unknown relief pitcher, who became the world series hero. Sherry captured two of the Dodgers' four series games over the Chicago White Sox and saved the other two. It marked the first time in series history that a pitcher participated in all his team's triumphs. Only three months before, Sherry was hurling for St. Paul in the American association.

Biggest Disappointments

Easily, the season's biggest disappointments were the New York Yankees, who failed to win the American league pennant for the first time since 1954. They finished third. Mickey Mantle, the team's big gun, suffered his poorest season, failing to hit .290. Bob Turley, the league's only 20-game winner in 1958, won only eight games in 1959. Don Larsen was a flop and so were a flock of other Yankees.

Even Casey Stengel, the autless manager, admitted he was guilty of mistakes. The White Sox' drove to their first flag in 40 years. The team was paced by the abulous keystone pair of second baseman Nellie Fox and shortstop Luis Aparicio; the brilliant hurling of 39-year-old Early Wynn and young Bob Shaw, plus the relief pitching of Gerry Staley and Turk Lown. Other key figures were pitcher Sherman Lollar, center fielder Jim Landis and veteran first baseman Ted Kluszewski, who was acquired from Pittsburgh.

Kluszewski tied a World series record with his 10 runs batted in. He hit three home runs but his hitting failed to top the oncharging Dodgers who won four of six from the White Sox.

The series was highlighted by three games in Los Angeles' Coliseum where record-breaking crowds of more than 2,000 watched each contest. The huge turnouts produced record series cuts for the players.

Third Playoff

The 1959 season also produced the third pennant playoff in the National league in its last 13 years. The Dodgers, beaten in the other two playoffs (1947 and 1951) overcame the postseason jinx by whipping the Milwaukee Braves two straight to become the first team in history to vault from seventh to the championship.

The Dodgers' big thrust was made in San Francisco when they swept a 3-game series from their arch-rivals, the Giants. Until then, it seemed that Bill Rigney's Giants were on their way to the National League pennant. Aided by siderably by Sam Jones and Jack Sanford, two pitchers acquired by trade, the Giants were the surprise of the league until the last 10 days.

LA's success was attributed greatly to the fine job done by Walter Alston, National league manager of the year in the AP poll. Al Lopez, the able manager of the White Sox, earned American league honors.

Haney Quits

Some pilots were hung in effigy and some were fired. Detroit's Bill Norman, Kansas City's Harry Craft, Boston's Mike Higgins, Cincinnati's Mayo Smith and Cub manager Bob Scheffing all received the axe.

Fred Haney quit the Braves after the playoff. New manyard punt return for a touchdown in the first quarter. But he felt the Badgers could still win even when they trailed, 24-8, at the half.

Speed Factor

"All we had to do was play football—go out and hit somebody," he said.

Bruhn was asked how the Huskies would fare in the Big Ten, and answered:

"Let 'em play and find out." Bruhn said he was surprised by the Huskies' speed.

Washington Coach Jim Owens, also felt speed was a factor. He explained:

"I knew all along that this game would be won or lost in the line. We had a smaller but faster and better line. And we beat them."

Proud

Owens told his players, "I'm awfully proud of every man on this team. It was a wonderful victory and now let's give a cheer for all our seniors — they really played ball." The Huskies, with a starting lineup of 10 juniors and one sophomore, cheered and cheered.

But there was time out for a prayer before the cheering really broke out.

After the happy Huskies had trooped into the dressing room, the cheering was still as the players and coaches bowed their heads in prayer.

Not Toughest

With the concluding words of "The Lord's Prayer," they laughed and shouted and pounded each other on the back. Some shed a tear of joy.

One kind word for the Badgers came from Fleming, who said, "They were tough." But he modified the assertion by adding, "But not the toughest team we've met."

It was the second time the Badgers played in the Rose bowl and the second time they lost. There may never be a third appearance.

agers include Jimmie Dykes at Detroit, Bob Elliott at Kansas City, Bill Jurgas at Boston, Fred Hutchinson in Cincinnati, Charlie Grimm with the Chicago Cubs and Charlie Dressen in Milwaukee. Joe Gordon resigned at Cleveland but was quickly rehired.

Highlights included Elroy Face's 18 straight victories, giving the Pirate relief ace 24 in a row over two years. He lost his last decision. Harvey Haddix had 12 perfect innings for Pittsburgh in a 13-inning 1-0 loss to Lew Burdette of Milwaukee. Rocky Colavito hit four homers for Cleveland in one Baltimore game. Sam Jones had a controversial 1-hitter and a seven-inning no-hitter.

Ed Mathews of the Braves hit a playoff homer to beat the Cubs' Ernie Banks, 46 to 45. Washington's Harmon Killebrew and Colavito tied for the AL lead at 42. Hoyt Wilhelm won nine straight for Baltimore before losing.

Top Rookies

Fox and Banks won most valuable player awards, but hitting champions were Milwaukee's Hank Aaron (.353) and Detroit's Harvey Kuenn (.353).

Top rookies were Bob Allison of the Senators. Veteran Wynn, with 22 wins, won the Cy Young award. In the National League, Sam Jones, Warren Spahn and Burdette each won 21.

Of course, there were disappointments besides the Yankees. The saddest to behold were the hitting slumps of Ted Williams and Stan Musial, two of the greatest hitters in history. Each finished well below .300, the first time in their careers.

Other disappointments were Frank Thomas of Cincinnati who recently was traded to the Cubs, Pittsburgh's Bob Friend, Cleveland's Herb Score and Philadelphia's Richie Ashburn.

Off the field activities featured a third major league movement in the rise of the Continental league. The year also will be remembered as the one in which the first inter-league trading period was established whereby players from one league were traded to the other without waivers.

Ask Fremont Voters to OK School Loan

Special Meeting Will Be Held Friday to Authorize Bids

Fremont — Voters of Joint School district 3 will be asked to authorize a loan and construction of an addition to the school at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Friday at the village hall.

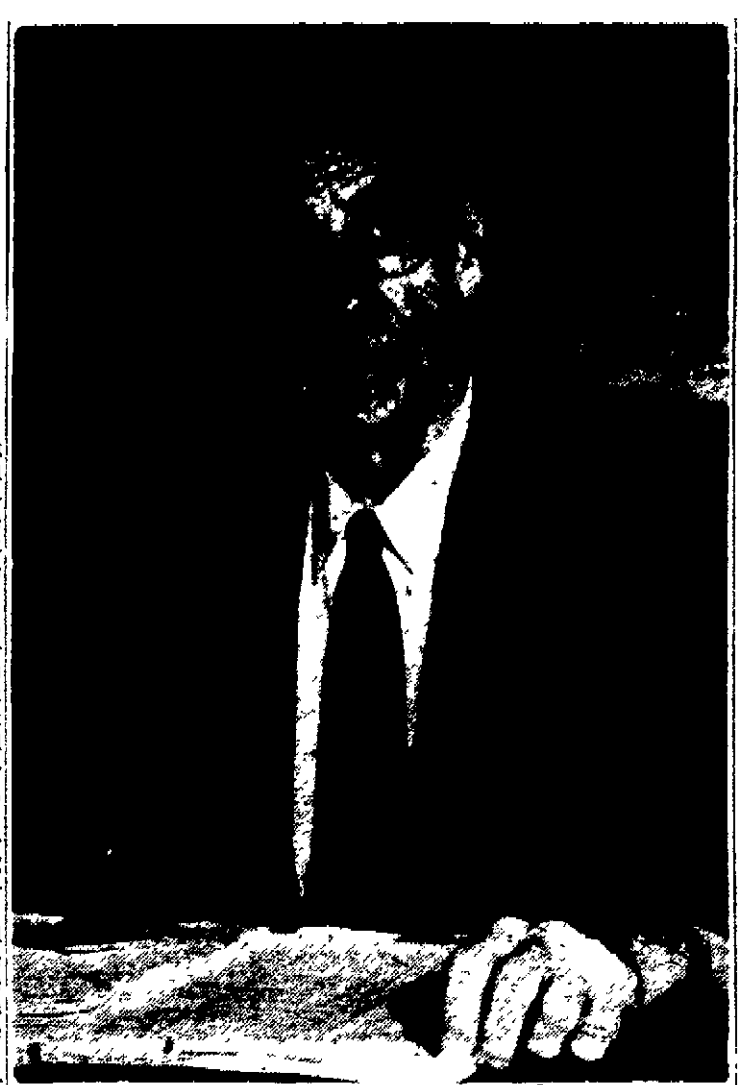

Mrs. Walter Mach, clerk, said the board seeks authorization to advertise for bids and to enter into a contract for the construction project planned for the grade school in accordance with plans submitted by Sumner Russell, architect.

The voters also will be asked to authorize the borrowing of $85,000 to finance the project.

After a previous special meeting at which voters gave the board a go-ahead on the expansion program, a petition seeking a referendum on the project was circulated.

The board has been advised by its attorney to reject the petition a not being covered by the statutes.

The board's attorney opined a petition for a referendum should initiate action on a new proposal, not ask for a vote on an issue that had been decided at a special meeting.

Looking Over Waupaca county welfare department files for the last time after 24 years of service is Hugh Johnson, head of the department. He retired Friday.

Welfare Field Needs More Preventive Work

Retiring Director at Waupaca Makes Statement After 24 Years Work

Waupaca — More preventive work in the welfare field is needed, Hugh C. Johnson, county welfare department director who plans to resign Jan. 1 after 24 years of service, said.

In noting changes in welfare type work, and possible solutions, Johnson cited difficulty in reaching problem situations before they fully develop.

His experience shows many welfare problems arise from persons with lack of education. Although juvenile delinquency, divorce or dependency can happen in any family, Johnson believed lack of education was a major factor.

Divorce Increases

How to prevent poor situations is still a mystery, the department head said. The department can offer help where needed, but can't force it, he said. Many who need help don't recognize the need.

The veteran welfare man noted an increase in divorce in the county in recent years. Johnson cited young marriages as a possible cause.

Most problems of juvenile delinquency can be traced to the home, said the 60-year-old director. Today many people expect school teachers to supply parental responsibilities.

The younger generation themselves seem to be more dependent on government and others. The attitude of "why worry, somebody will take

Fund Started to Aid 3 Orphaned Bowler Youths

Softball Team at New London Begins With $28 Check

New London — A fund to help tide over the three orphaned Pecard children until the estate can be settled by the courts has been started by donations of softball players.

Ted Ebert, sponsor for Ebert's Bar softball team, said players contributed $28 to start the fund. The money will be deposited at the First State bank, Harvey Rosenberg, executive vice president said. The money will be made available for immediate use of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Miller, Bowler, who are living in the Pecard home.

The contribution points will be Ebert's Bar, the First State bank, Automotive Supply company where Robert Besaw, a friend of the family is employed, and Mike's Texaco service station.

Youth Released

Jeffrey Pecard, 4, was released from the New London Community hospital Wednesday and Joseph, 2, was released Thursday. Both are staying with their grandparents at their home at 1515 S. Pearl street.

Judith Ann, 7, who suffered a fractured right arm and leg, will be released from the hospital Monday although she will be confined to bed at the Pecard home for about three months.

Parents Killed

Their parents, Donald Pecard, 34, and his wife, Winona, 28, were killed in a traffic accident Dec. 28 on Highway 45, three miles north of New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller, parents of Mrs. Pecard, are making arrangements to have custody of the three Pecard children. Members of the family agreed that it will be the best for the children to keep them together.

In the event something happens to Mr. and Mrs. Miller, the children will go to live with their oldest son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Miller, Jr., Wausau.

Failure to Yield Costs Youth $25

Sidney Fielkow, 22, of 1120 N. State street, has paid a $25 fine for failure to yield the right-of-way. He was arrested after an accident Nov. 25 at Richmond and Franklin streets.

The total taxes to be collected amount to $674,328.45. The tax roll is $672,303.20 and special assessments are $2,025.25.

A car driven by Hubert Peters, 56, route 4, Waupaca, collided headon with a truck driven by Anton J. Drzewiecki, 54, Green Bay.

Peters suffered a broken left arm and cut lip. Drzewiecki received chest injuries. Both were hospitalized at Waupaca but have been released.

State Patrol Gives Tips for Driving in Fog

Assuming All Have Headlights on Is Common Error

Wausau — Suggestions for driving under the poor visibility conditions of fog or snow were listed this week by State Patrolman Richard Zylman.

One of the common driver errors in fog or snow is to assume all cars have headlights turned on, the patrolman said. Many drivers operate on parking lights or without lights. Under conditions where headlights are visible at 1,000 feet, a driver might attempt to pass and find a car approaching at about 600 feet with no lights on, Zylman said.

A driver was recently arrested for passing under poor visibility conditions. Zylman said the driver needed 700 feet to pass and that visibility of approaching headlights was only 600 feet. In the limited visibility, a driver must assume an oncoming car will use at least half his passing distance, Zylman added. This means the passing car would have about 400 feet to pass when normal passing at 50 mph requires about 700 feet. He would need about 1,300 feet of visibility for the pass.

No pass should be attempted unless a driver is certain he can complete the pass in less than half the distance he can see ahead, Zylman warned.

Although Wisconsin law requires use of headlights only when there is not sufficient natural light to see a vehicle or person clearly at 500 feet, the patrol recommends drivers use headlights rather than parking lights for better visibility under poor light conditions.

10 State Titles, Other Honors to Twin Citians During '50-59 Decade

NHS Becomes Grid Power; Wins 3 Tennis Crowns; Menasha Legion Club Stands Out

During the period, Neenah constructed a new gym. Menasha went in for a full-time recreation program. The decade also saw Neenah surge forth as a football power. St. Mary became a state basketball giant, Neenah's continuing tennis sup-

Tom McNeeley TKO's Logan

Scores First Big Win; Bout Ends After 4th Round

New York — (AP) — Tom McNeeley, sturdy son of a Boston florist, still is an unbeaten young heavyweight with his first main event under his belt.

McNeeley got off a little easier than expected Friday night when he scored a technical knockout over George Logan of Boise, Idaho. Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission, stopped the bout after he examined Logan's eye cut in his corner after the end of the fourth. Under New York rules that goes as a fourth-round TKO.

Logan, 23, had lost only to Hurricane Jackson in 14 previous bouts. McNeeley now has won 16 straight and only two have gone the route.

McNeeley will be offered a Garden date Feb. 5 or Feb. 12 with Thorner Ahlman, unbeaten Swedish fighter who may come to New York if he does not get a European title bout with Germany's Hans Kalbfell. The Garden also plans to import Lennart Risberg, another Swedish heavy who is advised by Ingemar Johansson's adviser, Edwin Ahlquist.

Charcoal Fire Exhausts Oxygen, Neenah Man Overcome

Neenah — City firemen Friday afternoon supplied oxygen to Lawrence Allan, 741 Elm street, who was suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police received a call at 1:08 p.m. Friday from Mrs. Allan, who said her husband came into the house feeling ill after chopping some wood in the garage. Allan had started a charcoal fire in the garage to keep himself warm and the oxygen apparently was consumed by the fire.

Magazine Selects Johansson 'Fighter of Year' for 2nd Time

New York — (AP) — Ingemar Johansson, world heavyweight champion, has been named "fighter of the year" by Ring magazine in its annual year-end issue for the second straight time.

Johansson's selection was based on his dramatic third-round knockout of Floyd Patterson June 26 at Yankee stadium. Gene Fullmer, National Boxing association's middleweight champ, was the runner-up.

Although the boxing magazine still rated "Sugar" Ray Robinson as the world champion despite NBA's recognition of Fullmer, it listed "Sugar" Ray No. 2 among the middleweights.

Not Necessary Editor Nat Fleischer pointed out that the fact that a boxer is recognized as champion does not necessarily gain for him the No. 1 rating. Gene Fullmer was listed as No. 1 and "Spider" Webb, who was beaten by Fullmer earlier this month, was No. 2.

Three boxers were listed in a class by themselves for the

May Ignore Request For License Boost

Legislature Appears Cool Toward Proposal Designed to Replace Funds Paid for Predator Bounties

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The legislature is likely to ignore Gov. Nelson's suggestion that hunting license fees be raised to pay for the cost of the newly authorized state predator bounty program.

The governor is drafting such legislation, he said, in connection with his reluctant signature on the bounty bill that was opposed by the state conservation department and that will restore state treasury payments for the destruction of foxes, coyotes and bobcat.

He pointedly remarked that the measure had been passed by a majority greater than two thirds in both legislative houses, which was interpreted as a reminder that a veto of the measure would have been futile. The legislature could have enacted the bill notwithstanding his objections, under the constitution.

$100,000 Yearly
It has been estimated that the bounties will cost the conservation department about $100,000 a year, and unless the money is provided from other sources, it will disrupt the currently planned program of expenditures of the agency.

It would probably require a boost of about 25 cents in hunting license fees to raise the amount.

But the legislature had such a proposal before it when it decided to restore bounties, and, failed to enact it. It is not likely to do so, observers feel, after the enactment of the bounty authorization. The law-makers will return to Madison on January 6.

Difference of View

The governor evidently signed the bounty measure without enthusiasm, although he noted that there is some difference of view on the value of rewards for the killing of the predatory animals that sportsmen and farmers assert are destroying game and farm poultry.

"I recognize that some conservation experts have expressed doubts as to whether bounties — and the increased kills they encourage — have any lasting effect on the population of predators," he said. "There is some mixed opinion on this among conservation officials, however. The federal bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife continues to conduct predator control programs in some states. The Wisconsin conservation department, while opposing bounties, has spent $5,893 during the last 18 months conducting 139 fox-trapping demonstrations around the state attended by 3,357 farmers," he added.

Game Group Accepts Brown County Gift
The state conservation commission has accepted "with gratitude" a gift of $1,375 by the Brown County Conservation Alliance as a contribution to the development of the Sensiba public hunting grounds in the county.

Pest Control
Because fish, game and forestry divisions have a "common interest" in forest pest control programs, Director Lester P. Voigt has named the state supervisor of forest pest control, Donald W. Renlund, to membership on the research coordination board of the department of conservation.

Fish Tag Work About Half Done

About half of the fish tagging work has been completed for the Wisconsin river catfish survey project, the state fisheries division reports, and tagging has been discontinued for the season.

Next year more fish will be tagged, for a total of about 2,000 required for the study of the habits of the catfish in the river near the confluence of the Mississippi which have figured in disputes between sport and commercial fishermen.

Public Trout Pond In Monroe County Built by Wisconsin

A public trout fishing pond in Monroe county has been built by the state conservation department and will be ready for use next spring.

Pinnacle Rock pond, complete with a parking area and a sign inviting the public, was created by impounding springs. The pond measures slightly more than an acre in size and is "expected to provide stable trout fishing and a high return to the creel," according to the state fisheries division.

Coleman Wildlife Area Name of Hunt Ground

The nucleus of about 1,200 acres of leased public hunting ground in Marinette county just southeast of the village of Coleman will be known officially as the Coleman Wildlife Area, the conservation department announces.

District Game Manager L. J. Lintreuer recently completed arrangements for the renting of the first block of lands in the area.

1959 Top Year For Hunting And Fishing

More Americans Than Ever Took Part in Activities

The year 1959 produced new records in hunting and fishing in America, according to preliminary surveys.

More fishermen caught more fish, and some of the record fish were a little bigger than in past years.

The complete tallies are not available thus far, but probably 35,000,000 Americans bought hunting and fishing licenses, a million more than the previous year.

Full Story

Licenses do not tell the full story about participation in hunting and fishing as popular diversions. One magazine survey holds that 18,000,000 persons hunted last year, and 25,600,000 did some fishing. The same magazine predicted that within a decade there will be 28,000,000 hunters in the field and about 30,000,000 fishermen assaulting American lakes and streams.

Adds John W. Randolph of the New York Times in a postscript to the season: "The lies were bigger but declining in quality as they had been for centuries."

Bull Finds Duck Blind Tasty Dish

Tulsa, Okla. — Gene Kinney said he and a neighbor spent most of one day building a duck blind of lumber, carefully camouflaged with willow branches.

The next Saturday they hurried out to do some shooting and at the site they found the willow branches gone. Nearby stood a bull chewing his cud.

Cecil Hulbert, Spokane, Wash., displays a 36-pound Kamloops trout he pulled from Lake Pend Oreille at Sandpoint, Idaho. It was the second largest ever boasted—just a half pound under the record.

Paraguay Hunting Paradise; Game Outnumbers Shooters

Country Has Deer, Ducks, Boars And Animals You've Never Seen

Asuncion, Paraguay — Only a million and a half people live in Paraguay and the game outnumbers the hunters 100 to 1.

Jaguars, 6 to 8 feet long and weighing up to 200 pounds, their yellow coats glistening with black spots, lurk in the jungle trees. A visiting American hunter once shot a 9-foot-8 puma that weighed 375 pounds. Wild boars, their wicked tusks gleaming in the sun, run in hundred-strong packs. Eight-foot crocodiles with fierce teeth bask on sunny river banks. Thirty-foot boa constrictors uncurl from tree limbs.

Giant Rodent

Name the wild life and Paraguay probably has it—deer, both antlered or prong horned, brown wolves, pheasant, quail, turkeys, ducks, part-which has tasty meat, the hunter has to get him out of his hole. When frightened the armadillo dives down a hole, braces his feet and puffs out his body. You could pull all day unless you know the secret — grab his tail, shove down, then pull him out.

Wild Boars
Native Indians strap themselves to long hanging branches to hunt wild boars. When the pigs come snorting down their trail, the Indian leans over and knocks them out with a club.

Paraguayans often hunt crocodiles with forked poles, pinning them to the ground. Occasionally a brave native will jump on one and wrestle him into submission. Indians use a bow and arrow, with a line attached, shoot a croc in the water, then reel him in.

The boa constrictors, which grow large enough to swallow a horse, seldom attack hunters. To preserve the skins, rather than shoot the boa group of hunters lasso the snake and then kill him. Deer, ducks, rigs and other game can be found only 20 miles or so from this capital city. For the big cats you need a guide, who may need a compass to find his way out of the jungle, together with horses and dogs. These and other big game are found in the sparsely inhabited Chaco section of Paraguay whose few residents live in a hunting ground the size of Oregon.

Hunting in Paraguay has its hazards. Snake bite serum is a must in the pack. When game falls in the river, the hunter often dares not try to fish it out. Crocodiles and flesh eating piranha fish sometimes tear it to pieces before his eyes.

But the hunting in undiscovered Paraguayan jungles, swamps and plains is worth a lot of hazards. One U.S. hunter came for two weeks and stayed six months.

Legislators Keep Eyes on Upper Fox Improvement

Ask for Reports on Progress of Work in Transfer of Control

Legislators propose to keep an eye on the upper Fox River Valley improvement project authorized by the federal government in collaboration with the state conservation commission.

Two senators, Hollander of Fond du Lac county and Leverich of Monroe county, have asked the legislature to instruct the joint Legislative Council to observe and report on progress of the improvement project on the water way.

Transfer Control

The national government is in the process of transferring ownership and control of the waterway extending from a point near Portage to Lake Winnebago to the state conservation department, but under the law the state agency cannot finally take over responsibility until the national government has completed about $300,000 worth of navigation and other improvements ordered by the U.S. Congress.

Under the proposal, the Council would choose a committee composed of five legislators and three civilians "to cooperate with the conservation commission and the federal engineers and the citizens of Green Lake, Marquette and Winnebago counties to bring about the proper utilization of the large expenditure of federal funds in the area."

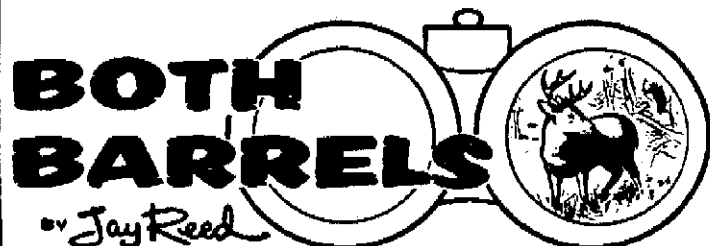

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST

Don't Use a Hunting Knife for Camp Chores, Cut Wood with an Axe, and Carry a Utility Pocket Knife for Peeling Potatoes, Etc.

Save the Keen Edge of a Hunting Knife for Skinning and Dressing Game, Especially Big Game. Otherwise, You Will Find the Job More Difficult, Particularly in the Last Minutes of Daylight.

It is usually necessary to re-sharpen a blade several times while dressing big game. Carry a small whetstone, with coarse and fine-grit sides to do it quickly.

Like many an outdoorsman before me, at the beginning of each new year, I faithfully establish a series of resolutions and/or goals at which to shoot for the next 12 months.

It rarely, if ever, works the way I plan but it's fun and it lets a man look at his own shortcomings.

For instance: In 1960 I resolve to take the hand trap and shotgun out for practice at least once a week. Now this is a fine thing for any shooter and I have resolved to do it every year for the past dozen years. Maybe I'll make it in 1960.

Another resolution I've made frequently over the years and do again this year is to quit smoking for the deer season. I make this now, however, comforted by the knowledge that resolutions, like records, are made to be broken.

—oO—

I resolve, too, to resist at all costs the impulse to haul away at the first tug on my line during the pike run on the Wolf river. I know I'll be able to make something of this resolution but only, however, after I've lost a half-dozen fish.

There's a small matter of applying lubricant to my new 10-inch hunting boots that requires a sincere resolution. I resolved this for my old pair which I recently discarded, worn thin at the soles, cracked and stiff.

When duck hunting season rolls around again I resolve, as I have so often, not to shoot too soon when a brace of mallards are swinging over the blocks.

And there are so many others.

—oO—

I resolve: To do more fishing for those big cats up on the Wolf; to go back to the land of the Roche Cri and try for the German Brown which snapped my leader in one ripping run last May; to straighten the contents of my tackle box.

Finally I resolve to be forever thankful to Divine Providence for: The trees which make up the forests and provide shelter for the animals and birds which live there... for the waters which grace our wonderful state and for the fish those waters contain... for the right to walk in those woods and fish in those waters... for the beauty, joy and contentment which is mine when I enter the world of the outdoors.

Hope, Bing Re-Route Next 'Road' Picture

CBS-TV Announces Six Specials About New York City; Pre-Oscar Talk Nixed

BY JINGO

Bob Hope and Bing Crosby have re-routed their next "Road" movie from its original destination, the moon, to Hong Kong.

It will be made at Paramount studios in Hollywood next year. It's the first "Road" picture they've made together since "The Road to Bali" in 1952. "Road to Bali" was the last in a long string, all of them box office smashes.

About the latest change in title, Hope says: "We couldn't call it 'The Road to the Moon'—the Russians got there first."

A series of six hour dramatic shows, featuring New York City as the continuing star, will debut on CBS-TV at 8 p. m. Friday, Feb. 26. Other programs are scheduled for the same time and day on March 11, April 8, April 22, May 6 and June 3.

The movie studios have nixed a soap manufacturer's idea show. The soap man had a good idea.

British star Richard Todd has made an hour behind-the-scenes film about Germany's Oberammergau Passion Play and is trying to peddle it to American TV networks. Another good idea.

Ed Sullivan has Bobby Darin, Connie Francis, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy and Carol Haney and Larry Blyden as guests Sunday, but the man to watch will be Kalamang, Europe's master of magic.

The German illusionist will make an automobile filled with passengers disappear from the stage, it says here.

Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will "Face the Nation" Sunday. The show is scheduled at 3:30 p. m. on CBS-TV, a time change that will become permanent.

Darryl F. Zanuck is negotiating with Ava Gardner for the bad girl and Kim Novak for the good girl in his film version of William Faulkner's "Requiem for a Nun."

"Around the World with Nellie Bly," the Janet Blair-Cornel Wilde Sunday special, will have 30 of Hollywood's top character actors in speaking parts. You'll recognize the faces, but won't know the names.

Jerry Lewis is planning a TV series about a Catholic priest, "The Man Who Couldn't Get Mad." He's signed Frank Alocco to play the cleric.

Red Skelton is lining up the entire cast of the movie "Li'l Abner," plus Cartoonist Al Capp, for a visit with Clem Kadiddlehoffer soon.
